<sup>1</sup>Please be as clear and accurate as possible when writing your email address. Authors chosen for publication will be notified via email.

The 360°- Journal requests that contributors comply with certain standards. Please read carefully and acknowledge the following statements before endorsing.

Statement:

I acknowledge that the attached submission with the following title is my own work. I didn't use any other sources and means but the quoted ones. Those parts of my submission referring to or adopting parts of other papers are specified as references to such works. I confirm that my submission hasn't been published yet and that publication in the 360°- Journal is not bound by copyright restrictions. Otherwise, it is me as author of the article bearing legal consequences and being fully liable for potential payment of the debts.

I have complied with the guidelines laid out in the "Autorenrichtlinien" to the best of my ability and I explicitly authorize the 360°-editorial staff to publish my submission on the 360°-Homepage as well as in print format.

I further give the 360°-editorial staff permission to edit and modify this submission for length, content, and clarity in concordance with the publication standards and conditions of the Journal. I understand that no major changes to the overall content or nature of my work will be made without my prior consent.

I will make the requested changes to my submission and return it by the date set by the Journal. I further understand that the Journal reserves the right to withdraw the submission from publication at all times (especially if I should fail to return the submission by the set date). Any failure to uphold the standards as outlined by the criteria ("Autorenrichtlinien") may result in the rejection of my submission for publication. I further understand that if chosen for publication, the submission to the Journal becomes property of the 360°-Journal and will not be returned.

The 360°-Journal carefully considers all submissions that it receives. The 360°-Journal's selection process has many steps: At least two editors review each submission, and many pieces go through a substantially deeper review. In the final stages of our review, many pieces will have been read and debated multiple times. I understand that the submission will be evaluated anonymously by at least two editors as well as -in the majority of cases- additionally by external reviewers and experts from various backgrounds.

I acknowledge that I am free to also turn in my original Research Paper upon which my submission might be based, including a verified proof of the grading. Regardless of the original Research Paper, I accept that only my submission will be object of the evaluation.
